"Working with CESSON Digital Marketing Agency was an amazing experience from start to finish. I reached out to them after we had a bad experience with another developer who left our company website in shambles. CESSON was easily able to pick up the pieces and help my team develop a new website. Dan Batten was my main point of contact and he was great to work with. He was always very responsive and he went above and beyond with developing the most beautiful website that we could ever ask for. What I really liked about the website development process was that we had monthly meetings where the CESSON team would give us a status update and address any questions, comments, or concerns we had. It was a great way for all of us to stay on the same page and push us toward the finish line of launching our new website. The entire team at Pilot is very proud to show off our new website and we would highly recommend CESSON to anyone looking to improve their online presence in a major way!"

Case Study: Baillie Lumber

Overview

Founded in 1923 by James A. Baillie, Baillie Lumber has grown from a regional supplier of domestic hardwoods to an international hardwood manufacturer and America's premier hardwood lumber company. Since 2010, CESSON has partnered with Baillie Lumber Group to navigate the evolving digital marketing landscape as the company expanded its reach across North America and internationally.

What began as a single-brand website has transformed into a comprehensive digital portfolio managing 14 distinct brands under the Baillie umbrella—including Baillie Lumber, American Lumber, Wagner Lumber, AHI, Hawkeye Forest Products, Potter Lumber, Superior Hardwoods, Hardwoods of Michigan, Blue Triangle, Augusta Lumber, Clendenin Lumber, and Double Aught. Together, these brands operate nearly 30 facilities across the United States, providing customers access to a complete portfolio of hardwood products—from North American species like walnut, cherry, oak, and maple to imported tropical hardwoods from Africa, Central and South America.

The primary goals were to establish strong online visibility for a B2B hardwood lumber supplier serving manufacturers and distributors, empower internal teams with digital marketing capabilities, and maintain a scalable web presence that could grow alongside the business as it evolved from a regional supplier to a cohesive, unified group of hardwood producers working cooperatively to serve the hardwood industry.

Through strategic website development, ongoing SEO optimization, and comprehensive training, CESSON helped Baillie evolve into a multi-brand industry leader with a robust digital presence that supports their mission: making hardwood purchasing simple and easy through unmatched supply and industry expertise.

The Recommendations

CESSON developed a long-term digital strategy tailored to Baillie's B2B focus and ambitious growth trajectory:

- Multi-Site Architecture: Designed and developed 14 separate websites on the Joomla platform, each representing a distinct brand within the Baillie portfolio—from Wagner Lumber's New York sawmill operations to Hawkeye Forest Products' northern hardwoods in Wisconsin, to Superior Hardwoods' vertically-integrated Indiana facility. Each site maintained consistent quality and user experience while showcasing the unique strengths of each brand.
- SEO Foundation & Ongoing Optimization: Conducted comprehensive keyword research targeting the hardwood lumber industry, specific species (walnut, oak, cherry, maple), and geographic markets. Implemented technical SEO best practices and performed regular audits with actionable recommendations for meta tags, titles, and H1 tags to maintain visibility in an industry where manufacturers and distributors actively search for reliable hardwood suppliers.
- Training & Empowerment: Provided extensive training to enable Baillie's marketing team to independently manage website updates, content changes, and implement SEO recommendations. This partnership approach—rather than full-service dependency—allowed Baillie to maintain agility while benefiting from CESSON's expertise, particularly important for a company managing multiple brands across nearly 30 facilities.
- Continuous Maintenance & Updates: Established a system for regular website refreshes, particularly focused on homepage updates in Q1 each year to keep sites current with modern design standards and industry trends. This ongoing maintenance ensures all 14 brand sites remain functional, professional, and effective.
- LinkedIn-Focused B2B Strategy: Developed strategies specifically aligned with B2B marketing channels, particularly LinkedIn, recognizing the irrelevance of consumer-focused platforms for their business model. This approach helped Baillie build its presence as a thought leader in the hardwood lumber industry, sharing insights on sustainable forestry, product innovation, and industry trends.

The Results

The 15-year partnership between CESSON and Baillie Lumber Group demonstrates sustained digital growth and operational excellence that has supported the company's evolution from regional supplier to international manufacturer:

Portfolio Expansion: Successfully scaled from 1 website to 14 brand-specific sites spanning operations from New York to South Carolina, Wisconsin to Michigan. All sites maintained on a consistent Joomla platform with streamlined management, enabling Baillie to present each brand's unique value—whether Wagner Lumber's sawmill expertise, Hawkeye's northern hardwood specialization, or Superior Hardwoods' vertically-integrated quality control.

Technical Performance: All 14 websites operate smoothly with strong uptime, modern functionality, and responsive design across devices, supporting a company that provides hardwood lumber "any time and anywhere" through more than 20 facilities.

SEO Success: Achieved strong organic visibility for industry-specific keywords through ongoing optimization, regular audits, and consistent implementation of best practices. This visibility supports Baillie's position as America's premier hardwood lumber company and helps connect manufacturers and distributors with the right hardwood species and solutions.

Team Empowerment: Baillie's internal marketing team, led by Tony Cimorelli, now independently manages routine updates, content changes, and SEO implementations based on CESSON's guidance and training. This capability allows the company to remain agile and responsive across its multi-brand portfolio.

Long-Term Partnership Value: 15 years of continuous collaboration reflects the mutual trust, consistent results, and adaptable approach that has allowed both companies to grow together—from Baillie's origins in 1923 to its current position as a cohesive group of hardwood producers serving the global hardwood industry.

The success of this partnership highlights CESSON's ability to provide flexible, scalable digital marketing solutions that evolve with client needs while building internal capabilities for long-term success. For a company whose tagline is "Succeeding in business is hard. Buying your hardwoods shouldn't be," CESSON has ensured that their digital presence makes it just as simple for customers to find and connect with Baillie's family of trusted brands.
